New R. I. Depot For Tinley Park

The past week plans for a new Rock Island depot at Tinley Park were made public and stakes set for the new structure which will be located on the south side of the tracks in what formerly was the Tinley Park Garden Club's park. Cinders have already been hauled in for the leveling off of the building site. The new depot it is understood, will be 84 feet long and is to be of brick construction. It will be modern in every respect and will house the passenger waiting room, freight and express offices and telegraph office. It is reported that the new structure will extend over what is now a pathway running from the depot crossing south and this path will be closed. It is understood that the contract has been let and that work is to start soon.

The present depot which has served the community for many years will be eventually torn down. It is understood that the Rock Island is also contemplating a new depot in Mokena, but nothing definite has been announced.

HOLD WEDDING RECEPTION AT HUGO NEITHAMMER HOME IN MOKENA

Last Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Neithammer opened their home in Mokena to a reception honoring the latter's cousin, Lt. Merle Haley and his bride, the former Miss Evelyn Gallaway of Charlotte, Ill.

Last spring when Lt. Haley was home at his home in Kempton on furlough, the wedding was planned to take place in their home town church, with a complete bridal party, but in an emergency Lt. Haley was recalled before his furlough was up, and he had to leave at once. Plans were changed and his bride followed in a few days when they were quietly married at his station at Birmingham, Alabama on April 27th. This is the first trip home since then which afforded the Mokena relatives an opportunity to honor them.

As the bridal couple approached the Neithammer home a chavarié was staged by the young people of the party, which included a rice shower. Interesting games were played which included an amusing kitchen shower, wherein one gift, after going thru many wrappings, was found to have been forgotten, but the note stated where the gift could be had.

A wedding march was a most interesting feature. It was led by the new bride in her wedding gown, which was white jersey, street length, with the original flower girl, little 5 year old Rita Haley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Haley of Dwight, Ill. The best man Mr. Donald Haley was also in evidence. Little Rita wore her floor length pale blue silk dress. In the march wedding gowns of the older guests who were fortunate to still have them were modeled as follows: The oldest gown that of Mrs. Elmer Cooper, 43 years old was modeled by her grand daughter, Miss Audrey Neithammer who also played Lohengrin's wedding march as the procession proceeded thru the rooms. Mrs. Arthur Lauffer's gown modeled by Eleanor Hostert, Mrs. Barney Hostert's by Norma Hostert, Mrs. Hugo Neithammer's by Dolores Cooper, and the following wore their own wedding gowns: Mrs. Donald Haley, Mrs. Russel Lauffer, Mrs. Vernon Haag and Mrs. Harold Cooper.

After the many beautiful gifts had been presented to Lt. and Mrs. Haley luncheon was served in the dining room. The table was attractive with a bouquet of mixed garden flowers, with lighted tapers and a wedding cake decorated in yellow and white.

Out of town guests were: Lt. and Mrs. Haley, Mr. Harrison Haley of Kempton, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Haley of Dwight, Ill., and the following from Marley: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Coe and Mr. Edw. Marshall. Also Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Haag and Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hostert all of Mokena.

Braves South Pacific Storm to Save Woman

Angrily, the Pacific hurled its huge waves against the little naval launch that was bearing Dr. Chas. V. Waggoner of Clinton, Iowa to the bedside of a native woman in the Admiralty Islands, a woman threatened by death in the midst of an extremely difficult childbirth.

It was the night of September 3. With three Medical Corps companions Dr. Waggoner, now a Lt. Comdr., in the Navy, had set out in the frail launch in a dash to save the life of a woman at Inrim. Medical attendants in the compound at Inrim said they could do nothing further for her, so an emergency call had been put thru to the U. S. Naval Base where Lt. Comdr. Waggoner was stationed.

The child had died before the navy had been called into the case, but Dr. Waggoner and his companions saved the mother's life. They had risked their own lives for the sake of this native woman. It was an unusually black night and a storm was raging. There were dangerous reefs in the path of the little launch. But the mission was carried out in safety and it was completely successful.

Before entering the naval service, Dr. Waggoner was in private practice in Clinton, Iowa as a Gynecologist and Obstetrician. He is the husband of Olive Kohlhaugen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhaugen of Frankfort.

FRANKFORT LIONS HEAR INTERESTING TALKS BY RETURNED SERVICE MEN

The Frankfort Lions club at their monthly meeting held Tuesday evening in the parlors of the Methodist church enjoyed a very fine attendance and also were delighted to have with them Howard Lenhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lenhardt who is home on furlough from the Navy, and Lloyd Lühring son of John Lühring, who is home on furlough from the army after 30 months of service, most of which was in New Guinea. He travelled over 30,000 miles by sea. He gave an interesting account of the entertainment programs they have had with movies and special performances by Hollywood actresses and actors. He mentioned Joe E. Brown as being one of the big entertainers.

Mayor Geo. Sangmeister and Emil Lenhardt who have both been absent from Lions Club meetings for months due to illness, were able to be present and were given a welcome.

The Lions are planning for their annual Christmas party and Lion President Semmler appointed a committee consisting of Herbert Lambrecht, Henry Breidert and A. C. Bauch to have charge of arranging for the party.

Abandoned Road Scene of Accident

Five young people from Mokena and a visitor from Chicago figured in a very serious auto mishap Sunday afternoon on the old abandoned highway running alongside the Rock Island railroad back of the Bruder farm southwest of Mokena.

In the car driven by Marvin Kohl were Misses Jean Reuckert, Ruth Lowe in the front seat with Andy Bueschel, Leigh Krapp and his cousin Dale Packard of Chicago in the back seat.

The autumn scenery along this old road is very pretty at this time of the year and the young folks decided to take this drive to view the autumn scenes. The road in question has been abandoned for sometime but there is no barricade to indicate it is dangerous to drive on, only short posts having been driven across the road. At one time the WPA was engaged in repairing this road and had torn out a culvert leaving a gap in the road five feet deep and 8 feet across. The project was abandoned but the culvert was left open.

Not realizing this condition of the road, Marvin drove into the gap with quite serious results. The girls seemed to have suffered the most, but all were badly cut and bruised. Miss Lowe suffered a frontal skull fracture and deep lacerations while Miss Reuckert sustained a dislocated jaw and was also badly cut and bruised.

Immediately after the accident which occurred about five o'clock, the young folks managed to get out of the wreck. In the meantime Marvin Kohl had gone to the nearby Wm. Roberts farm for aid and Carole Roberts came with his car and took the girls who had started to walk back toward Mokena, to the office of Dr. E. G. MacMahon in Mokena for first aid. Later the girls were taken to the Silver Cross hospital Joliet, where they remained until Thursday afternoon when they returned home.

The road in question is located in New Lenox Township and has not been traveled for many years.

JOE MARTIN BUSY

Republicans aren't saying much about it, but it is extremely noticeable that Joseph W. Martin, house minority leader, is not playing a prominent role in the national campaign. Inside fact is that he is too busy trying to get reelected in his own district, where he is opposed by Edmund P. Talbot, former mayor of Fall River and a former sheriff of the county. Talbot is of French-Canadian extraction, a Catholic and a Spanish War veteran.

In the 1942 election, the largest city in this congressional district, Fall River, voted as follows: Joe Martin received 11,765 votes, while the Democratic nominee, Lomax, received 17,334 votes. Therefore, while the whole district went Republican by 17,000, Fall River went Democratic by almost 6,000. Already there is a 41,000 registration in a city which cast only about 30,000 votes in 1942.

Outside of Fall River, if Martin can be kept down to a 12,000 lead, Democrats figure he can be licked. Martin led outside Fall River in 1942 by 22,000. But in many of the small towns there are powerful groups of Yankee liberal intellectuals who are close to the Willkie line. Talbot has made contact with the United Nations groups in this area and they are working enthusiastically for him.

BIGGER AND BETTER BOMB

Army officials haven't revealed whether they plan to use it yet, but they've already perfected and tested a new flying robomb, bigger and faster than anything the Nazis have ever seen.

Fact is, the new robomb was tested in the Middlewest last month, and whizzed through the air at more than 100 miles an hour during performance checks. The bomb has been developed with the aid of the Ford Motor company. Whether it is in production or not is a military secret.

Actually, during the last war, Ford produced a heavy robot bomb of his own, but couldn't find out how it would perform under front line conditions. It has never been revealed, but, in the American part of World War I, one robomb was partially inspired by Gen. "Hap" Arnold, now commander of the U. S. army air corps.

Arnold brought his idea to the Ford company, asked Ford to work out a motor to go with it. Ford rolled up his sleeves, soon produced a two-cylinder engine that worked well. Probably if World War I had lasted another six months, the robomb would have made its appearance 24 years earlier.

NOTE—The original American robomb is still preserved in the Ford laboratories in Michigan.

TEXAS THINKS TWICE

Before Roosevelt delivered his campaign speech at the teamster's dinner, he had a private session with Teamster Pres. Dan Tobin, in which they discussed the political situation, especially in Texas, the state that had been trying to make up its mind whether to have Roosevelt electors or non-Roosevelt electors on the ballot.

"Did you hear Bob Hannegan's story about Texas, Mr. President?" asked Tobin. "With those electors coming and going he says it's 'On again, off again, gone again, Hannegan.'"

Roosevelt observed that he had done everything he could about Texas, but didn't know what was the matter with the folks down there.

"There's a fellow down there named Garner who doesn't love you much," replied Tobin, "but I don't think he's going to vote against the ticket. And if Texas does defeat you, they'll lose all the juiciest jobs in congress, for the best committee chairmanships from the speaker down are chiefly held by Texans. I don't think they'll cut off their noses to spite their faces."

Next day the Texas Supreme court voted to put the pro-Roosevelt electors on the ticket.

JAP WAR MAJOR JOB

Administration leaders aren't talking about it but they are privately concerned about America's reaction to V-E day. They not only fear a possible slowdown of production and fighting spirit, but also an unrestrained celebration on Armistice day.

Noisy street celebrations, widespread drinking and any feeling that the war is over will be most unpleasant for the millions of families who have sons in the Pacific still faced with the big job of defeating stubborn Japs.

There was strong sentiment within OWI to suggest announcements that unrestrained irresponsible celebration would be out of place, but Elmer Davis finally decided against it. No agency has the right to dictate to the people how they should receive the news, Davis feels. At the same time, OWI will propose that radio and press carry potent reminders that the war is not over and that we are still faced with a major conflict in the Pacific. OWI will point out that war effort must replace V-E celebrations.

Japs in Manila Bay Bombed by Halsey's Torpedos

Navy Avenger Torpedo bombers of Adm. William F. Halsey Jr.'s Third fleet caught a large Japanese merchant fleet napping in Manila bay and sank most of the ships, at the same time setting fire to many land installations. The attack lasted two days. Photos show the smoke rising from burning ships and land targets.

German Cities Show Results of Allied Might

Shelled and bombed buildings in the city of Stolberg, Germany, give some idea of the severity of the battle that took place between the Germans and Americans. (Left) German cities are beginning to show the results of war in the same way that other European countries have. (Right) Germans leave their homes which were shelled by the Nazis in an attempt to dislodge the strong foothold gained by American troops. The Americans won, but the city was laid in ruins.

Here's One for Anyone's Books

When Jack H. Leopold, Philadelphia, came home he found his Boston bull, who was an expectant mother, nursing these kittens. The door of the apartment was locked. Where "Tootsie" got the kittens is not known, but she has taken a very material interest in them.

Jack Dempsey Refereeing Bout

Coast Guard Comdr. Jack Dempsey, former ring champ, gives an added punch to a shipboard boxing show when he steps into the roped arena as referee. Dempsey is called upon almost daily to referee bouts in addition to his work as physical instructor. He has been busy developing a new string of world contenders.

Entertains Buddies

Not all the entertainment furnished the GI Joes comes from stage and screen stars. Corp. Viro Capezio, Philadelphia, does his share with accordion solos near Frainbois, France, to keep up the morale of his overseas buddies. While hundreds of troopers have given their services to the USO to entertain the uniform forces, the visits to isolated units are rather rare. Most units have their own musical instruments and offer instructions in many cases.

Bullets for Axis

These are for the six .50-caliber machine guns used in the new U. S. army Eighth air force, P-51 Mustang fighters. The cartridge belts being carried represent the amount used by only one gun on a flight.

RELIGION IN EDUCATION

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:7-12; Luke 6:39-45.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—John 8:32.

Education without religion will make America a pagan nation in a generation or two. Even worldly-minded educators are concerned about the neglect of and opposition to Christianity in many branches of our country's educational system.

Christians will want to be informed and to act as they have opportunity to bring Christian influence to bear on the education of children. They will want to give their hearty support to real Christian education.

I. Seek Wisdom from God (Matt. 7:7-11).

We have made great progress in the improvement of educational equipment, in the construction of fine school buildings, and in the provision of trained teachers. There have been earnest efforts to develop the most effective courses of study adapted to the needs of our day.

All this is commendable—except for one thing, and that is really a foundational error. We have given little, if any, attention to the development of character, without which the skills of hand and of head may be actually dangerous. Theodore Roosevelt is said to have observed that "to educate a man's mind without educating his conscience is to make him not a social asset, but a social liability" (Douglass).

The teaching in our schools of the evolutionary theory as though it were fact when it has never been proved has provided a foundation for all manner of denial of God and of the truth of His Word.

What shall we do? Surrender? Not at all. Let us look to God for His wisdom and grace. The promise is that the one who asks, receives, when he asks in faith and for God's glory (cf. James 1:5-8 and 4:3). Prayer is vital in real education.

II. Use Wisdom with Men (Matt. 7:12).

Education has as one of its important goals the ability to get along with our fellow men. As the Lord enables us to grow in wisdom and knowledge, it should show in our treatment of those who look to us for guidance and help.

This so-called Golden Rule is a high standard of conduct which many profess, but which only the grace of God can accomplish in a man's life. To always be positively doing for and to others what we would have them do for us is far more than the negative thing which most people assume it to be. They reverse it and are trying to avoid doing things to others that they would not have done to themselves.

Note again that this is on the positive and the active side. We are to go about doing good, such as we would desire for ourselves.

III. Follow Wisdom in Humility (Luke 6:39-42).

If the teacher is spiritually blind he will lead his equally blind pupil into the ditch. That is exactly what is happening in many schools and colleges. No pupil will rise higher than his teacher (v. 40).

Real education makes a man humble. He is not ready to destroy his brother's eye because it has a speck in it, for he recognizes his own weakness and sin. He needs the grace of God in his own life first; then he is ready to give help to others.

There is something fine about the genuine sweet humility of a man who is really educated. He is not pompous and proud, parading his learning so that the populace may be impressed. He is humble and teachable. Real scholarship calls for genuine faith in God.

IV. Find Wisdom in Godliness (Luke 6:43-45).

Every tree brings forth its own kind of fruit. Christian character is a fruit which grows only on the tree of Christian doctrine. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (Prov. 9:10). That means that to be truly educated a man must be a Christian.

That which is good and noble and upright can be brought forth only from a mind and heart of which the same things are true (v. 45). An evil man will teach others evil, a good man will teach them that which is good. Hence, the folly of thinking that if a teacher only has a brilliant mind, and is versed in the technical learning of his profession, it makes no difference what his morals are nor how he lives.

That theory has brought ruin to thousands of young lives, and it is high time that all who have to do with educational work demanded godly character as the first requisite of the teacher and made it the leading subject in the curriculum. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

CHAPTER I

I was born on a farm near the center of the United States, so, when I began making notes for this chronicle, I decided I would find just how near the center our farm really was. I wrote the United States Department of the Interior, Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., and this is the answer:

"The geographic center of the continental United States, exclusive of Alaska, lies in Smith County, Kansas, about two miles northwest of the town of Lebanon. The distance from this locality to Maryville, Missouri, is 199 miles."

I suppose our farm was typical of a great many farms in this heart-center of the United States; and that our way of life was typical, too. And I suspect that my own personal story is typical of a great many life stories of this section.

If you want to find where Maryville is you'll have to do quite a bit of looking, for it's still a pretty small place. (I don't know what our Chamber of Commerce is going to say about that.) Maryville is 44 miles north of St. Joseph, Missouri, and the farm where I was born is 14 miles south of the Iowa line, and the back of the farm is on Highway 71.

The story of our farm is the story of me, for, in a way, I am the farm and the farm is me. Our two stories are wrapped so closely together that I cannot tell one without setting down the other. And that is what I hope to do: to tell the story of the farm and of myself. A sort of double-barreled biography.

The 102 River pokes along just east of us. Friends are always asking me how a river got that name. I suppose I had just as well tell it now as any time: it was the hundred-and-second river the Mormons crossed on their way to what is now Salt Lake City.

St. Joseph is where the ox teams were outfitted to cross the Great Plains, and where the Pony Express started. Also where Jesse James was killed.

All this was prairie country, in the early days. We used to have an old buffalo wallow, but my father put a strawstack on it and leveled it off till now it's just a plain, unromantic patch of cornfield.

My father and mother were covered wagon pioneers. They left Ohio by ox team for California, but the land at Maryville looked so good they stayed. But they didn't know each other, as they came lumbering out from Athens County, Ohio. They were on different wagon trains and never heard of each other until they met in Missouri. Many Ohio people came into this prairie section and got to marrying each other. Later, many came from Tennessee and Kentucky and settled down among the Ohio and Indiana people; and that is one reason ours became a Border Warfare State.

My father knew nothing about the Croys, except they were "Ohio folks."

My parents were two of the thousands upon thousands during this period in American history who were looking for land, for land represented Opportunity. They were typical of the time and the way they went about opening up a farm was, I suspect, typical, too.

The Ohio people camped together that first winter and shared work and shelter while they scouted for land. Most of them wanted timber, because they had come from timber and had always worked in timber. But my father wanted what he called "open land," which he had seen during the Civil War; so he went a bit north of the rest of the Ohio people and singled out a prairie quarter section. Then he rode in to town, horseback, to enter it up, but one of the land speculators of the period had got there ahead of him and had filed. Pa always said it was a blow, because an ex-soldier was supposed to have first go at homestead land. The land speculator had paid the government $1.25 an acre, and my father had to pay him twenty-five cents an acre profit. I am sorry that my father did not get to "enter up" the land, for that would be something to talk about. But the land grabber was there first. So there is one other name between the United States Government and Croy. I wish that was otherwise, too. But it's something to have had a farm under one name since 1870, through drouth and depression and easy money (seemingly) and hard times. And there's always plenty of the latter. Ask any farmer who pulls a living out of the soil.

Sometime during that first winter, my father and mother met. She was the belle of her wagon train, and he had risen to sergeant in the Civil War and was considered one of the promising young men. It wasn't long till they were looking each other over. Susan Sewell and Sergeant Amos Croy. Everybody was poor and money just wasn't.

But there was land and there was youth and strength and will and determination. Mother told me about the courting. He gave her only two presents—a lead pencil and a twist of cinnamon bark. My father was always sensitive about this, as if in some way it reflected on his ardor, or his generosity, but I'm sure it was as much as any of the Ohio men gave their girls.

In some mysterious way he managed to find a pair of white calfskin gloves for the wedding. I still have them and I would not take a great deal for them. I sometimes wonder what his farmer hands must have looked like in those dainty articles.

They were married in her brother Will's parlor and Pa took off the wagon-brake and they angled across the prairie to their new home. I would like to say it was a sod hut, for there were many sod huts. But it wasn't. The Croys and Sewells had cut the lumber themselves and sheared it to the proper thickness and put up a one-room house, quite a landmark on the prairies. They moved in and started to farm and the Croys and Sewells have been farming ever since. I still have that farm and I hope I always will. It's really a wonderful farm. I want you to believe that. In fact, any farm is wonderful if you or your folks have gone through hell for it.

On the farm there was not, incredible as it may seem, a stick or a stone. Not even a stone as big as a marble. The soil was black prairie loam, left during the Ice Age. All there was on it was prairie grass, bunch grass, slough grass and wild flowers. And grasshoppers. Plenty of them!

Sometimes would come to the door and make food signs.

Fuel was a problem. But my mother, as did the prairie women of this section, solved it to a certain extent by picking up buffalo chips. Surely you know what they are. If you don't, you simply have no pioneer tradition.

But they did have a sod stable. Poles across the roof, thatched with slough grass, and slab doors.

The Croys and Sewells banded together again and sank a well. It's still there and has the finest water in the world. That's not just my opinion, but everybody's who has ever emptied a tin cup.

And so my father and mother, with their well and their one-room house and sod stable, started to housekeep. And considered themselves lucky. Almost envied.

Now and then Indians would skulk past—the Nodaways—and sometimes would come to the door and make food signs. But never any real trouble.

My father put the first plow in that "virgin soil," as the fancy writers call it. But it wasn't easy, for prairie grass grows deep and slough grass deeper. Horses can't do the job. It takes oxen and, for the prairie grass, they had to be double-teamed. Again the Sewells to the rescue.

I wish I had some kind of written record of those days when Father's and Mother's window was the only light on the prairies, but I haven't. So I will have to piece it out of what they told me when I was a lad. I wish I'd paid better attention. But everybody in that section had the same story to tell, so it didn't seem exciting. The Indian part seemed awfully weak. Sometimes I almost wished one of them'd taken a shot at Pa.

Sometimes my father used to talk about how nice it was in the early days. No chinch bugs, no cutworms, no corn borers, no black rust, no Russian thistles. But it was different about the grasshoppers. They almost got him, once. He would drop his voice when he spoke of that year; and so vivid and personal did he make it that it always seemed worse than the Battle of Chickamauga. He still had his "catridge" belt, as he called it. And he talked about having had his army rifle, but I have no memory of ever having seen it. I expect, when I came along, he gave it away, for he was always afraid his child was going to be hurt.

The next thing was to start an orchard going, so they got apple seeds, and currant cuttings and put them in the ground, for not one edible thing was then growing on that land.

The next was to get a place for the work stock, so they hauled in poles and made a jack oak barn lot fence. There the horses could exercise and the oxen roam around.

The first living annual to go into the ground, in addition to the orchard and "low bushes," was Osage orange. This was designed to be used as a fence; "hedge fences" they were called, for no one at that time knew they were called "Osage orange." Just hedge—and damnable stuff, too. After a time, when the farmers could obtain posts, they wanted to get rid of the hedge, for it sapped ten feet of corn, and barbed wire was all the style. The hedge must be cut in August and its roots fed salt. There's no hotter work in the world than grubbing hedge roots along a cornfield in August. Don't try it.

Once a month my father and mother would get into the wagon and go to Maryville, the county seat. It was six miles, but shorter than now because there were so few fences. They'd have to hurry with their trading and get home, because there was the stock.

Grandfather Croy came and built a house half a mile away. Then Uncle Jim came and Uncle Al and Uncle Dexter and Uncle Purl. It wasn't long until the Croys were as thick as Johnson grass. The Sewells stayed down on the other side of the county, twelve miles away. It was a tremendous distance. The Croys hardly ever heard from them.

Neighbors began to filter in. Some from Indiana and some from Illinois. A few from Kentucky and Tennessee. These'd bear watching. Rebels.

My mother used to tell me about corn shucking in those early days. My father had no shucking gloves, for cotton flannel was too expensive, so he had to pick bare handed. The shucks cut and lashed his hands. During the afternoon my mother would bring out some corn bread and an apple. Then she would work along with him until time to go in and begin on the housework again. When the wagon bed was filled, Pa would come in and scoop out the corn, do the chores, and eat supper. After supper my mother would pour melted candle tallow into the cracks and cuts in his hands. She always spoke of this with a kind of horror. "It made him moan in his sleep."

More people moved in and some fool suggested roads. The "old settlers," such as they were already being called, fought it tooth and toe, but had to give in; so it was not long until nobody went to town over a trail. It took Pa years to get used to the idea. Mother was more progressive and took it in her stride.

But when they sold a load of steers and had to take them to town to ship, it was all right to drive them across the country straight for their target. It was all right, too, to run ahead and pull down a barbed-wire fence so the steers could cross, like the children at the Red Sea. After the steers were past, the fence had to be nailed up again. A man who didn't properly nail up a fence was considered pretty low. One notch lower and he'd poison dogs.

It was not long until somebody suggested there ought to be a school. So the farmers met and talked it over. Mr. Knabb said he would give an acre of land if they would name the school for him.

The farmers hauled out the lumber and dug the corner holes and it was not long before there was an institution of learning on Mr. Knabb's land. The next year it was painted, and there the schoolhouse still stands.

The exhausting labor Father was sinking into the farm began to pay dividends. The orchard was coming up, hens were dusting themselves under the gooseberry bushes, and Mother was thinking of getting guineas to keep her company. The sod barn had given way to an all-pole stable and father was dreaming about a hog house. But he had to go slow, times being what they were and hog prices going up and down like a scale beam.

Leave It to the Irishman
To Find a Bright Side

Two Irishmen, employed in a stone quarry, were blasting with dynamite when one of them was killed by an unexpected explosion. His mate was given the unpleasant task of conveying the news to the newly created widow.

Slowly and thoughtfully he plodded to her home.

"Mrs. Flanagan," he began, when she opened the door, "isn't it today the collector will be calling for your husband's life insurance payment?"

"Sure it is, but what is that to you?" replied Mrs. Flanagan.

"Then 'tis yourself that can be snapping your fingers at him," the man responded cheerfully.

Yours truly,

He's in business for himself, this kid.

He invests his own money in his newspapers because he has confidence in his own ability to sell them at a profit.

He has learned by experience that business grows through hard work, salesmanship and thrift.

He gets plenty of hard knocks—but profits by them.

He knows what competition means—and has learned to meet it.

He uses his wits.

He gets ahead.

He is capitalist, laborer and consumer combined.

He is typically American.

Multiply this boy by millions—and you'll see what makes America tick.

We're all capitalists in America. We don't wear cut-away coats and plug hats. We wear overalls—work in our shirt sleeves.

We carry life insurance, or have savings accounts, or hold war bonds, or own farms, garages, fruit stands, drug stores, or other businesses—large and small. And as capitalists we are all interested in a fair return on our money.

All of us labor for a living. And as laborers we are all interested in making as much money as possible by producing more goods and services for more people.

At the same time we are all consumers. We buy food, clothing, shelter, luxuries. And as consumers we are interested in fair prices, honest values, good service.

Like the newsboy, each one of us is a combination of capitalist, laborer and consumer.

Each of us is free to take his own future in his own hands—and pull himself up by his bootstraps. That is the grand American privilege. It makes newsboys into business men—shop workers into industrial leaders and successful farmers out of chore boys.

There are no restrictions on ability in America—and there must be none.

For as business, industry and agriculture grow in this country, more jobs are created. More people benefit. More men, starting at the bottom, reach the top. New products are made. Production goes up. Prosperity follows. Higher standards of living are provided for more people. A desire for still better things is created.

That's progress. That's free enterprise. That's AMERICA.

Buy War Bonds and Stamps—and Keep Them!

New Deal Has Destroyed Democratic Party, Gov.

John Bricker Declares

Governor John W. Bricker, Republican vice-presidential nominee, delivered vigorous indictment of the New Deal Administration as he carried his speech-a-day campaign tour west of the Mississippi.

Speaking in St. Louis, on October 4th, over a nationwide network, Governor Bricker accused the New Deal of dividing the people of the nation in order to hold its power.

"It has set class against class," he said. "It has played minority groups for their political support. It has attacked not only the actions, but the motives of all who dared to oppose it. Never before have we had the bitterness, engendered by selfish political interests, that we have experienced in this administration."

Governor Bricker condemned the New Deal for "its vicious and persistent attacks upon business," and for using its extraordinary wartime power "to suppress the rights of the American People and to subordinate them to constant bureaucratic domination."

"I do not condemn the Administration for its legitimate efforts on behalf of the workers of this country," Governor Bricker continued. "But I do condemn the New Deal for its favoritism among labor groups, for playing one against another for political purposes, for bad administration of labor laws and for political adjudication of disputes between labor and management. Such tactics have resulted in strife and strikes, they have actually lessened war production."

Charging that the New Deal "is leading this nation away from American principles of government," Governor Bricker said that the Roosevelt Administration had destroyed the traditional Democratic party.

"Instead the reins of power have been turned over to such White House agents as Hopkins, Frankfurter, Rosenman, Pepper, Ickes, Kelly, Hague and the temporarily inactive Pendergast," he said. "They know little of the real life of America and they care less. They want power and jobs. Patronage is their meat and drink. Power is their passion. The American people are their victims."

"But there is now a more dangerous influence than these. As the New Deal took over the Democratic party—so now the Communists and the radicals have taken over the New Deal. The New Deal Convention in Chicago raised to the pedestal of power a man whose ideas of government are alien to the Constitution and free representative government. His name is Sidney Hillman."

"The millions of dollars collected by Hillman and his PAC, often from unwilling and intimidated hard working people of America, were too much for the New Deal leaders to pass by. They saw the opportunity to evade the Hatch Act—to defy the corrupt practices act—indeed to buy this election. A supine and political-minded attorney general helped pave the way by a purely political opinion."

Governor Bricker added that the Communists under Earl Browder had joined forces with Hillman in control of the New Deal Party.

"They are seeking to tie the noose of Communism not only around the New Deal but around the whole American people," he concluded.

Governor Bricker also scored the New Deal in speeches at Bowling Green, Kentucky; Nashville, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Centerville, Ill.; Ottumwa, Iowa; a Tri-City Meeting (Rock Island, Ill. and Davenport, Iowa); and Milwaukee.

NOVEMBER 7

In 1932 the NEW DEAL pledged to simplify and abolish unnecessary bureaus in the government. The NEW DEAL pledged to balance the budget and reduce government expenditures. These pledges were repeated again in 1936.

ACTUALLY the NEW DEAL'S only solution to any problem great or small, has been the creation of new bureaus, and the peculiar policy of SPEND AND SPEND AND TAX AND TAX, until the cost of our National government, NOT COUNTING WAR EXPENSES, has multiplied six times.

Federal bureaus have expanded to the point where, in every state of the Union, Federal employees actually OUTNUMBER STATE EMPLOYEES BY HUGE MARGINS.

You can help stop the waste!

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Stanley Johnson

The Frankfort School Fair will be held in the school gymnasium on Halloween evening, starting at 7:30. There will be entertainment by the school children, displays, games and refreshments. This annual "penny social" has always attracted a large crowd and the public is again cordially invited.

Miss Viola Lankenau, Mrs. Henry Heisner and Miss Annette Kohlhaugen, teachers at the Frankfort school, will attend the Northeastern division of the Illinois Educators Association today at Aurora.

Frankfort school pupils have subscribed 100 percent to the Junior Red Cross and at present are working on bed room slippers for convalescent soldiers.

Halloween parties will be sponsored by both Frankfort churches. The Methodist Y.F. will be host at a party at the church on Friday evening, October 27 and the Evangelical church will be the scene of another party Saturday evening.

In a letter to his wife, Pvt. Don Swinford who is with Gen. Patton's army in France relates the following: "I finally got some souvenirs sent off. I sent a letter opener that cost 100 francs, some pins, a Nazi belt buckle, scissors and French and German coins. Its awfully hard to buy anything as souvenirs because everyone is after them and there are not so many in these towns.

I guess I've seen everything now. I saw a fellow working a bull and a horse together yesterday; one man with about six 5 gallon milk cans of a contraption hooked to a bicycle and pushing the bicycle; and a woman lock her front gate and the whole side of her house was blown off. I spoke to a woman who understood English fairly well today and she told me her husband had been a prisoner in Germany for four years. During that time they didn't have candy, sugar or soap. I gave her some candy and a cigarette and she went "merci" all over the place. The French are really beggars for American cigarettes and candy and would take all you had if you'd give it to them. They have beer, wine and cognac which they pass out freely. In some places it's hard to get bread and others rather easy. We get it in a while and I'm getting so I like this hard whole wheat bread. If we can get a little jelly it goes pretty good too. I was given a combat infantryman's badge this morning and its pretty nice, it means 10 bucks a month more.

The jerries got chased out of one of the finest houses that I've seen in France and our squad got a break and got to stay in it over night. It must have belonged to a wealthy man it's got four stories and must have 25 rooms. There are several beds and we got to sleep in a bed that had a silk mattress cover. Believe me its hard to get up from this to stand guard. There is a piano that I think I will send home for a souvenir. The floors are inlaid and in some rooms there are little nooks with lavatories I'm sending home the key from this house. They are different from the keys at home. I've seen the Rheims cathedral and slept in that wonderful bed at Charnes.

I have been darn lucky and have a lot to be thankful for, and you and the kids are a big part of that. I showed the picture of you and the kids to a French woman and she kissed the picture, aren't you thrilled?

I can't match your letter a day, but I'll do my best."

the war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home.

"I agree with you, Sam. I never miss one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men...and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away...either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinions."

Buy your feeds direct from the manufacture and get better feed for less! The average feed manufacturer buys at the Board of Trade. The grain is sold to the country elevator, then to the Board of Trade, then to the feed manufacturer, then to the feed dealer. This means four freights and four different profits.

We buy direct from the farmer, grind it, mix it and sell direct to you. We manufacture a high grade of feeds and concentrates for poultry, hogs, rabbits and live stock.

JERSEY CITY MACHINE GETS HILLMAN'S AID

"I AM THE LAW"

This is from one of a series of articles appearing in PATHFINDER Magazine, Washington, D. C. It is reprinted by special arrangement with the editors.—Editor.

Politics, they say, makes strange bedfellows. Possibly because of the political adage that says "when you can't lick 'em, join 'em." Mayor Frank "I-am-the-Law" Hague of Jersey City, N. J., finds himself, at 68, plumping up political pillows with his bitterest enemies. The CIO organizers he kicked out of Jersey City seven years ago are dinner guests these days in his 14-room suite at the Duncan Apartments. Sidney Hillman, boss of the Political Action Committee and the American Labor Party, calls up City Hall now and then for a quiet chat.

PAC SEEKS SPOILS

This is the unhappy plight of Hague, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee . . . shrewd ruler of the Jersey shore of the Hudson River . . . builder of the city machine that is supposed to be the most perfect example of Bossism in the United States . . . the same Frank Hague who said in 1937, "I do feel that it is an error for public officials to be seeking those votes of the American Labor Party. I have branded the American Labor Party as being a communist group."

This time, they whisper across North Jersey, the Boss is really hooked. If he delivers the New Jersey electoral vote to his good friend and champion, FDR, again this year, Mr. Hillman's American Labor Party and the Political Action Committee will both claim some of the credit and demand a share of our boys overseas.

Mrs. Ida Benson has received word from her son Pvt. Kenneth Benson that he is now in East India.

Mrs. Walter Yunker has received word that Pfc. Clarence "Slim" Werner is now in Belgium.

Mrs. Edward Hentsch has received news from her husband, S. Sgt. Eddie Hentsch, that he is now in Luxembourg.

Pvt. Kurt Hellmuth who is recovering from a leg wound in a hospital in England is teaching the German language to fellow patients who expect to soon rejoin their outfits. His Commanding Officer feels that even a limited knowledge of the language will be helpful to them.

The following boys have birthdays this month: Albert Agazzi, Walter Bormet, Harold Balaz, Robert Liess, Elnor Munson, Earl Moss and Harold Rose. We are sure they would all be happy to hear from all of their friends.

We are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cappel for their $5 contribution.

The Smokers took possession of first place after waging an uphill battle. The Oilers took a one game as they swamped the Browns by 150 pins, then the Smokers surged forth pulling up even by winning the second game by 7 pins and took the deciding game by 20 pins. Werner, Miller and Walsh were the leading siege guns for the smokers while the big guns for the Oilers were Burkhardt with 540 series and Rauch with 508.

The Paperhangers snapped their losing streak climbed out of the cellar with a rousing three game sweep over the Bankers. Andy Buschel's 577 series was the major factor in the upset.

The V Eighters tied the Bankers for third position when they took two games from the fading Robins.

share in the Federal patronage that has been the exclusive Jersey property of Mr. Hague since 1932.

Irving Abramson, of Newark, state chairman of the CIO, is titular New Jersey boss of the Political Action Committee units springing up in the factories and union clubhouses throughout Hagedom.

GRAVEYARD VOTES

If, Hague avers, Mr. Abramson's ball-pushers can pull in enough Democratic votes throughout New Jersey to reach Jersey City with only a 75,000 or 100,000 Republican lead, he'll take care of the rest . . . voting machines or no voting machines. In this field, built lovingly and with great skill since the day he became City Hall janitor in 1908, I-am-the-Law is supreme. Through a system of "repeat" votes, ballot switching, ballot erasures, he can deliver 50,000 fraudulent votes any day of the week. If that isn't enough, there are always the graveyards.

CHANGE MAY COME

Sitting in oiled perfection smack across the North River from Sidney Hillman's Manhattan headquarters is the Hague machine that the American Labor Party, the Political Action Committee, and their fellow travelers, the Communist Political Association, eye so hungrily. Hague is 68 years old. Neither his son nor his nephew has shown I-am-the-Law's astuteness for municipal crookedness, despite arduous training.

But that astuteness is obviously evident across the North River in the person of Sidney Hillman (Russian revolutionary in 1907, strike-leader in 1910, IWW organizer in World War I, frontman for Communist organization efforts in labor unions since 1922) in the national committee of the Communist Political Association (five of whom are CIO executives) and in the old masters of American Communism, Earl Browder and William Z. Foster. For Hillman and the Communists, political observers point out, have something in common with Hague, during all their years of feuding. Neither Hague nor Communists, as leaders, bother to listen to their followers. Both tell their followers what to think and what to do. This is good Communist totalitarian practice, in Moscow and in Jersey City. It is only right that the ALP and the PAC succeed tired, old Frank Hague in the Democratic kingdom of Hudson County, N. J.

"It wasn't always this way," Billy Southworth of the Cardinals said. "Maybe a lot of people have forgotten, but from the start of the National league in 1876, St. Louis had to wait 50 years before breaking into the pennant class. That's a long time for any one to wait, much less a rabid set of baseball fans."

This happens to be true. It was not until 1926 that the Redbirds under Rogers Hornsby finally flew into the promised land, flowing with milk and world series honey.

"But it's been different in the last 18 years," Southworth continued. "Starting back with the 1926 club the Cardinals have won eight flags, not overlooking four world series titles with a pretty good chance to make it five out of eight. I'm not predicting anything, but it will take some high class baseball to knock us off."

"In looking over the record," I said, "The Cardinals so far have played in 41 world series games, winning 19 and dropping 22."

"Yes," Billy answered, "and a big part of that was due to those Yankees with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig who beat St. Louis four straight. Anyway in four world series games with the Yankees the Cardinals have won two and lost two for an even break, which isn't so terrible when you consider all that Yankee power and pitching."

"There've been a lot of great ball-players on that Yankee club—Ruth, Gehrig, Dickey, Ruffing, Gordon and several more. But we've had a few pretty good ones on our own. Hornsby, Frisch, the two Deans, Pepper Martin, Terry Moore, Medwick, Marion, the two Coopers, to make up a short list and I'm not overlooking Lon Warneke."

"At least you never saw a Cardinal club that wasn't packed with spirit and action and color—one that wasn't always hustling. You couldn't find more color than Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin carried along."

Billy Southworth

Southworth is a quiet, modest type off the field but he has plenty in the way of fire in action. His proudest memory is that in the last three years his ball clubs, though losing some 27 men to war service, have yet won over 300 games since 1941.

"That shows we must have been pretty well stocked with talent," he said with a slight grin.

"It won't hurt you a lot," I said, "when this talent returns to the Redbird roost after the war is over—such men as Moore, Slaughter, Johnny Beazley, Howie Pollet, Brazil and some five or six others."

If the war should happen to be over in a year or so he would have as many stars returning as the Yankees, and possibly a few more. For the Cardinal stars are younger, and youth is a big factor as far as the future concerns those now in service. Southworth knows this.

Series Features

"You've seen a flock of world series," Southworth said. (Now we were being interviewed.) "What would you rank as the high spots?"

That happens to be a big order when you look back to 1905, some 39 years ago.

The first was Christy Mathewson's triple shut-out against the Athletics in 1905 when Matty limited a hard-hitting club to 14 hits in three games.

Another concerned the Cardinals in 1926 when Grover Alexander, Old Pete, strolled from the dugout after a hard fight and fanned Tony Lazzeri with the bases full to pull the Cardinals through.

The third was Babe Ruth's calling a home run against Root of the Cubs—and then delivering the same, almost flattening the ball on a line drive.

Then there was Harry Hooper's catch of Larry Doyle's almost sure homer in 1912 against the Red Sox. Hooper dived over the wire in the fifth inning of the eighth game to make one of the greatest and most important catches of all time. This miracle play won the series. And it was 90 per cent miracle.

Bill Dickey's home-run blow against Mort Cooper last fall wasn't any part of an anti-climax.

Almost every world series has its spectacular parts.

Greatest Backs

The debate was—"Who was collegiate football's greatest backfield star?"

This is covering quite a lot of time and territory. Rip Miller, former Notre Dame star, and now a navy coach, picked Buzz Borries of the navy—"A back," as Rip put it, "who could do everything brilliantly."

"What about George Gipp of Notre Dame and Jim Thorpe of Carlisle?" I asked the Ripper.

"I never saw either play college football," he said. "I don't know."

Fall Seedings Aided By Use of Fertilizer

Early Order-Delivery Increases Availability

Extra supplies of fertilizer may be available for farmers for the 1944-45 season if they order early and accept early delivery, according to the War Food administration.

Farmers are being urged to order and take delivery before December 31 of six bags of fertilizer for every five ordered last year.

Storing of fertilizer from fall until spring is entirely practical wherever dry space is available.

Yields of fall-seeded grains, winter cover crops, hay and pasture will be increased by proper use of fertilizer during the early fall, agronomists point out. That means more food for humans, bigger feed supplies for animals, and more grain essential to industry. Fertilizer is more readily available in the fall since it is usually the slack time on sales and distribution.

Experiments over long periods have shown that a net acre increase of a ton of hay may reasonably be expected from the use of the equivalent of 100 pounds of triple superphosphate per acre on alfalfa. Potash deficiencies should be made up at the same time superphosphate is applied.

Increases in legume cover crop growth, which when turned under brought better yields of succeeding crops, are amply supported by research data as well as actual farm experience reports. Yield of corn immediately following the vetch are also increased an average of more than 11 bushels per acre on four of the state's major soil types without the use of additional fertilizer.

Farm Cooling of Eggs Will Insure Quality

Cooling to a safe temperature is an important factor in the care of eggs on the farm. The germ in fertile eggs can grow when the temperature is above approximately 68 degrees F. Eggs when laid are about the temperature of the hen's body, 104 degrees F. to 107 degrees F.; therefore, prompt cooling is essential.

In very warm climates, special care must be taken to cool eggs promptly. In cold climates they must be protected from freezing temperatures. In arid regions, it is essential to supply moisture to cooling rooms to prevent the eggs from drying out excessively.

For cooling eggs, producers make use of cellars, springs, caves, ice houses, and numerous home-made cooling devices. A popular and inexpensive cooler is made by covering the sides and ends of a frame with coarse burlap and moistening this cloth by keeping one end of it in a pan of water.

Agricultural Facts

Afternoon cut hay has more value than that cut in the morning.

Skim milk given to poultry instead of water will provide adequate protein.

Rabbits may be killed for meat as young as two months of age, but the best age is four to five months at a weight of 5 to 8 pounds.

Dress injured trees with lanolin for quick healing of wounds.

Baby chicks and hatching eggs can be shipped economically by air.

Quick freezing and locker storage is the most desirable method of food preservation. Flavor and nutritional value is retained.

Hogs have given a greater return per hour of labor in corn belt during past 10 years than any livestock, says Purdue university.

Dowager's Rights

By FAYE McGOVERN
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"LEI MING," complained the dowager from the depths of her silken bed, "you aren't going to work in that hospital again today?"

Her daughter continued fastening her quilted black jacket. "Yes, Mother. They need me."

"But must you degrade yourself? Isn't there something more genteel you can do?"

Lei Ming shook her smooth dark head. "They need every helping hand they can get. The city is full of refugees in need of medical attention."

"But how can you expect me to arrange a suitable marriage if you persist in such associations? No man of character will want you."

"There are too many children who need attention now," sighed Lei Ming, turning away. "Many of them are homeless." She turned back suddenly. "If you would only come with me!"

The dowager settled her plump, perfumed self deeper among her pillows and sighed. There had been a time when the many splendid rooms of her house were filled to overflowing with prominent, notable, important people. But with the war's coming lavish social affairs were frowned upon, and life was exceedingly dull. And Lei Ming was becoming harder to understand.

Tears ran down her cheeks, and with her plump hands curled helplessly on the coverlet, her small mouth drawn into a pout, she fell asleep. When her frightened handmaid shook her she awoke with a start. "Madam! Lei Ming needs you. The ricksha boy who brought the message waits without. Make haste!"

For the first time in all her sheltered life the dowager hurried. Toting on her tiny bound feet she arrived at the rambling old mission hospital, her hair awry. The curious eyes of weary, hungry refugees followed her progress across the crowded courtyard. Greedy hands twitched at her silken trouser leg, and shrill voices pleaded for alms. Angry maledictions followed in her wake as she swept past, unheeding.

"I told my brother."

Rushing from the bright sunlight into the gloom of the building she collided with a very dirty-faced little girl who had been standing directly in her path watching her approach with awe.

"Must you stand in the way, child?" the woman scolded. "Goodness, don't shriek so. Here."

She dabbed at the child's tears. Immediately the howling ceased, and a radiant smile lighted up the youngster's face. "Mmmmm," she cried. "You smell good."

An odd, half-forgotten warmth swept over the dowager. "Thank you, child," she said abruptly, and hurried on. She stumbled through three crowded rooms before she found Lei Ming efficiently bandaging a man's shoulder. "What does this mean?" demanded the dowager indignantly. "I thought you needed me."

"We do, Mother," Lei Ming said without ceasing her work. "Hand me the scissors, please."

Trembling with anger the older woman obeyed. "I never dreamed you could stoop to such trickery."

"I merely sent word you were needed, and you are. I'm sorry if you were frightened."

"Frightened! Of course I was—" A tug at her clothes caused her to look down. The little girl she had run into was holding a dirty little boy by the hand.

"I told my brother if he would let you wash his face he could smell you," cried the child eagerly.

The small boy grasped the dowager, pushed his face against one leg and inhaled deeply. He smiled and clung, staggering a little.

She stooped and picked him up. His head dropped against her soft shoulder and almost instantly he was asleep. For a moment the dowager looked uncertain. But when the child stirred and sighed, her clasp tightened. Decision brought pink spots to the plump cheeks she hadn't taken time to rouge. "I'll take these two home with me."

"Oh, thank you, Mother," Lei Ming cried. "But are you sure you can manage?"

"With a houseful of empty rooms and servants? Of course I can," was the retort. Then, with vigor, "And tell Dr. Wu if he wants to retain his fees he'll get the rest of the children up to my house—at once!"

Memos of a Collyumist's Sec'y

Hugh Baillie, United Press chief, now covering the war on the Eastern front, wires back that the Nazis aren't quitting yet. But some of Hitler's pals over here want us to . . . One of my friends at Collier's tells me that back in the Spanish-American War our Navy was the first to use rocket guns on the USS Vesuvius. When it was told to some top Admirals they were flabbergasted.

Labor leader Lewis was the butt of a practical joker in a crowded Washington hotel foyer. Someone pinned a "For Roosevelt" button on his back, and was he fee-yoo-ree-us!

The Press Box: The N. Y. Herald Tribune headlined that telegrams praising Gov. Dewey's oratory are pouring in . . . Howcum? Isn't there a ruling against wires of congratulation during this war? . . . Remember the journalistic whoops when the gov't took over Montgomery Ward? They waited that it would devastate liberty . . . The other day the same gov't took over a large Ohio war plant and the same gazettes buried the yarn . . . The Post offered an arresting contrast: One of its stories quoted Churchill stating that no war criminals will be free after the war. Another yarn revealed that British Fascist Capt. Ramsey (mixed up in Nazi espionage) had been released from gaol and was free to do as he bloody well pleased . . . How Tempus Fugit! Commu newspapers in the U. S. now praise the Repub stronghold—Wall Street.

At the National Press Club, Washington, the other day, George Gallup, the surveyor of public opinion, was cornered by some scribes. One said: "Doc, what does it look like to you right now?" . . . To which Dr. Gallup replied: "Roosevelt, Bricker, Fala, Dewey and Truman!"

Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright, wife of the heroic General captured by the Japs, is due at the Waldorf October 7. She will do a broadcast with Mrs. R.

Newspaperman Stuff: Two syndicated collyumers were talking shop the other night . . . The first remarked that one of his papers had dropped his stuff because he attacked people the paper liked . . . The other said: "They tried that with me. But I quit!" . . . "Yeah," said Ann Sheridan, "but I'll bet you had to slide like hell to make it!"

The Moom Pitchers: In the new "March of Time" due this week, "What to Do With Germany" offers the best shot yet of Hitler losing control of his eyeballs. The scene apparently was among film captured by the Allies from retreating Nazis. An amazing scene—the convincer that Hitler is nuts . . . "Seventh Cross," a punchy anti-Nazi theme, becomes punch-drunk when it attempts to show good Germans in the Fatherland.

The President of Ecuador will be a White House guest. . . . "There's No Place Like Washington" will be published around Election Day. Cong. S. Bloom's dgthtr auth'd. . . . Good news for the ladies: The WPB will give the official nod to shoe manufacturers some time soon. To make femme shoes again—with high heels. . . . The Vatican's gold in the U. S. (since 1941) will soon be returned to Rome. It was flown here via clipper 3 years ago. . . . 32,000 firms dealing with war industry have applied to Dun & Bradstreet's for rating. Meaning that many expect to resume civilian work shortly. . . . Beware of stories from H'wood on Sinatra. One aggrieved person has been gunning for him and may try printer's ink as the weapon.

Despite the promise of the Truman Committee not to do anything about the Breakers Hotel, Palm Beach, before Sept. 1st, the returned wounded there (Ream General Hospital) have been quietly transferred by Gen. Somervell to Camp Atterbury, Indiana. . . . And, although he claimed there was no need for such a hospital on the Florida East Coast, Somervell is now transforming the WAC barracks at Daytona Beach to replace the Ream Gen'l Hospital. . . . The current "inside" all over Washington and Palm Beach is that someone very dear to someone very influential used to spend the Winter at Palm Beach and was very upset when she could no longer go there!

Many soldiers signed a letter from Fort Bragg requesting mention of Margaret Connors, running against Clare Luce for Congress in Conn. They wrote: "We know from reading your column, that you don't go in for strictly party politics, and give a candidate from either party a good word if deserved" . . . I assured them Miss Connors was mentioned often. . . . Cong. Anderson's Congressional probers (on financial backers of certain outfits) have summoned Gerald L. K. Smith. About time!

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Economic conditions in the Latin-American countries have been greatly influenced by the demand for natural rubber. This is evidenced by the report that Nicaragua shipped to the U. S. 1,267 tons of rubber in 1943 as compared with only 60 tons sent us in 1941.

The B-29 Super fortress, our largest aerial weapon, has built into it some 5,000 pounds of rubber, covering more than 200 items. Thirty bullet-sealing fuel tanks alone account for nearly two tons of rubber.

Rubber Director Dewey is authority for the statement that heavy-duty military tires made with 70 per cent synthetic rubber and rayon cord are better than the best military tires made before the war.
